Chapter 1 by -

"Sir, we're getting messages about a - uh, well some sort of aircraft." Smiling broadly - hiding his discomfort.

"Joe, what has that to do with the alternative health care plan?"

"Uh, well you see..." He grinned again - showcasing those flawless white teeth.

"No I do not see! Please Joe, if you have nothing pertinent to say, shut your mouth."

The conference room was cozy. Thick cushioned black swiveling chairs outlined the shiny mahogany table. The aroma of fresh brewed espresso and hot cinnamon buns swirled about the room. Portraits of past presidents hung on every wall. And large windows gave a view of the bustling city.

I warned you, Sora! It's not like I'm the one who and doesn't care about me!" Sora said.
"I'm not the one who's been keeping you away from me," he said. "It's not like I'm the one who's been keeping you away from me."

"Cliff, listen to yourself! Turn our backs on what we began? No. I already told you once, I am going to finish what I started. I won't let my family down again."

"I know. I had hoped that you changed your mind. You're letting your regret influence you. The past is over, there was nothing you could have done to save him... Saturn, there is nothing more to prove to your family."

Saturn turned away from Cliff's hold. She knew the wisdom in his words, the truth. But how could she turn from the duty before her?

Yes, she was supposed to lead the invasion. It was Commander Wonce's way of killing her off. He had taken over command with his charismatic charm. Promising the people better, stronger leadership.

Saturn didn't want to hurt Cliff, he had helped in so many ways. She wanted his approval. And yet, Saturn knew what she had to do. She would stay, and prove to the people and her family that a girl could lead.

That a woman could win.
